

Newcomer Wellbeing Symposium

Sharing our journey in learning how to design and implement a community service coordination model.

Funded by:  Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada
Financé par:  Immigration, Réfugiés et Citoyenneté Canada

Opportunity made here.

The two-hour symposium features a keynote presentation from a public policy expert, John Shields, and the WoodGreen Newcomer Wellbeing project design team. You will be learning about best practices, newly developed tools and how to design a Community Service Coordination Model. The team will demonstrate the tools, the results achieved over the last three years, and the importance of the Community Coordination Model to support newcomer wellbeing. In addition, there will be a Q & A with Keynote Speaker John Shields and the WoodGreen Design and Implementation Team.

Would you please share this exciting news and invitation with your colleagues who may be interested in learning more about developing a program that addresses newcomer wellbeing? There is no cost to attend the online symposium.

Attendees will receive access to resources and tools developed to address newcomer wellbeing needs.
